Two men with an identical job, two monotonous lives, meet for the first time while on vacation. The two towns they are vacationing in are polar opposites. One a quaint inland city, the other a seedy port city with a dangerous underbelly. Four of the most horrible crime scenes I have ever seen in a movie was in this one. This movie is not a comedy, it's a revenge thriller. It's a fantastic movie. It's funny, it's depressing, it's suspenseful. You will not be able to put it down. This movie reminded me of the first 80s action movies. I recommend it to all. It is 88% on Rotten Tomatoes. A couple of guys from the Midwest stumble upon a lakeside town in the woods. It is absolutely deserted. Everything has been taken from this town. There are no stores, restaurants, nothing. It's the perfect crime scene. These guys are intrigued by what they see. They take snapshots with their phones. They think they are being followed. They think they are being killed or something. But then they find out that the town they are living in, is being haunted by a demon who is "transfixed" by a young woman. The human woman is being trapped in the demon's thrall. Now, the two men have to figure out a way to release this demon and save the woman. This movie starts out slow. It takes the audience a while to figure out that this town has fallen into some kind of supernatural trap. It's dark humor is light, in a way, like a lot of Netflix movies. "Tale of Two Towns" is more of a drama film than a horror film. It's not as gory as horror movies. It's more psychological, more suspenseful. It's not a happy ending, but it's a welcome change. Most horror films always end up with a happy happy ending. There is no happy end in this movie. The casting is perfect for this movie. It's the perfect team. Both Brian Dennehy
