I've answered a few questions and my rep bar is growing up slowly but surely - but at the same time, some of the answers I have given aren't getting enough votes. Why is this happening? A: It's perfectly normal for high-scoring questions to not

VMware ThinApp 64-Bit Enterprise V4.7.2 Build 771812 Keygen. Note: This 64-bit version of VMware's ThinApp Enterprise mode only A: The 64-bit ISO images are not available. See "Purchase options" (I haven't been through it yet, let alone the available options) You can try and download the 32-bit ISO, which will work on a 64-bit OS. You can also download the 32-bit ISO image, which doesn't really matter since ThinApp can work in either mode (your preferred method, if you've pre-configured the box to use the 32-bit ISO). Let me know if this works for you. Q: How can I convert an IF statement to something a recursive function can understand? I have the following function that basically takes user input, checks to make sure that the input isn't an invalid number, and then if it is, it calls itself recursively until it does not. The code works fine except I'd like to remove the hard-coded "numerator = 0" because that's not something that I can use as an input to the function. The loop that I have works but I'm sure there's a simpler way to convert it. Can someone please help me out? Thanks! def prime_factors(n, divisors = []) : if n == 0 : return if n % 2 == 0 : divisors.append(n) return for divisor in divisors : if n % divisor == 0 : divisors.append(divisor) return A: I think you may have mixed up your logic a bit. def prime_factors(n, divisors = []) : if n == 0 : return if n % 2 == 0 : divisors.append(n) 570a42141b
