HyperMotion Technology encompasses game-changing new features, such as improved player rendering, physical mastery, next-level ball physics and an all-new animation system. The beta period on Xbox One and PS4 will test the new physics and gameplay systems while demonstrating the additional visual fidelity of HyperMotion. This beta will test how players interact with new player presentation features, including improved animations, rendering and match broadcast. New to the beta period will be the ability to choose sides of the pitch from the all-new Main Menu. Pick which side of the pitch you want to appear on at the Main Menu and view pitches as they were originally designed. The new beta on Xbox One will also include a new feature, called Trainer Mode, that will let you practice and improve your goalkeeping, shooting and passing by identifying and correcting your mistakes. Trainer Mode will provide a variety of difficulty levels, ranging from training in the human Virtual Trainer all the way through to replicating the most complicated on-pitch scenarios. Trainer Mode will be included in the Xbox

One beta. HyperMotion will also add to the new physics system. In FIFA 19, responsive movement was previously limited to 20 meters in any direction from your player's foot. With HyperMotion, this has been increased to 40 meters, giving players more freedom of movement and better control. This allows players to be in tighter situations, execute better aerials and defensive tackles, and manoeuvre the ball with precision. Reflections on how the new physics system works will be the topic of the final beta, which will test the game on Xbox One and PS4 in its most challenging modes. It will also test the all-new ball physics, as well as touch controls and face tracking. The final beta will be the largest test of all new features on the new Nintendo Switch, with double the number of participants compared to the previous beta period. In the final beta, players will also be able to record their own All-Star game and test out the new, enhanced My FIFA Rewards voting system. All-Star matches will be held on the same surfaces used in the final beta period, including stadiums in the United States, Europe and Australia/New Zealand. We will also see the introduction of several new broadcasters during this final beta period, including David Platt for ESPN and Stephen Cross for Fox Sports. The new beta includes a complete overhaul of the

In the world's most popular feature-length soccer film, FIFA Soccer. Get the Game Welcome to FIFA™. Control your career path from youth to elite, and compete in unrivalled authenticity on the pitch. In FIFA 22, you'll get closer to real football in every way. Over 400 official clubs, teams and leagues, and more than 24,000 licensed players. Tactical and physical gameplay, all in FIFA's award-winning engine. The ultimate football experience. Become the Best Throughout FIFA 22, you'll experience changes to the in-game physics system which brings soccer simulation to a new level of realism. Players adapt to the environment in real time, using the motion of the ball as a reference for their movements. Impact-based or reactive physics combine to deliver true player movement and ball physics. FIFA 22 comes with a new Dynamic Wingback system. The improved defender when compared to FIFA 21's Aerial Shield is designed to increase pace of play, defensive stability and defensive intelligence. Dynamic Wingback provides a stable structure that provides greater speed and movement and less ball exposure, which leads to more interceptions. Dynamic Wingback also includes a new Low Block system that focuses on player cover across the front-line. It means that defenders can make more impactful interceptions or block crosses and clear more space, giving your defence a much-needed boost. New Dynamic Dry Hump system responds to the player's actions to provide a tighter defensive shape and more stable positioning. It provides a more rigid defensive structure with greater responsiveness and tightness. The New Defending System also incorporates a new strategy for opponents to attack the run of play. Every Impact Zone on the pitch reacts to the player's positioning and speed. The improved Active Agility System means players have the upper hand on their opponents, giving you greater acceleration and stability in short, tight-space situations. New Power Throw System brings a new dimension to long-range throws. Improvements to movement speed, reaction time and the long-range throw accuracy mean a wider bc9d6d6daa

FIFA is the world's biggest and most popular sport video game, now with over a dozen officially licensed leagues, thousands of teams, and more than 14,000 national team players. The all-new FIFA World Cup mode is based on the new FIFA World Cup™ Trophy and the FIFA World Cup™ Trophy Tour, and this year returns to a yearly basis for the first time since the 2006 version. EA SPORTS FIFA 22 introduces a suite of innovative new features, including a comprehensive brand new player intelligence system that allows players to customize their experiences even further. This revolutionary feature will be demonstrated during the Inside the Game Show Live broadcast on FIFA.com. The next generation of set piece play and ball control features are also new and will revolutionize the ball-control and set piece play during the Champions League, Europa League, FA Cup, League Cup, and more. The ultimate journey, PLAYER A.I. Advisor, which is based on the the rich physiological data of the players themselves, will enable coaches to manage players more accurately throughout the season. Another featured that has been hard at work behind the scenes is the full transfer system, called TransferMarket. This feature, which is brand new for FIFA, will allow players to sign, sell, and trade in players all throughout a season. These actions will be presented in real-time and players will gain transfer fees based on how well they perform for their new team. Lastly, the Ultimate Team mode will allow players to build and manage their own dynasty. Up to six players can be selected and train in one of five customizable Ultimate Teams (UT). Players can view each other's rankings and make tactical decisions that directly affect their performance when they play in real-time. Unlike Ultimate Team before, this year's version will now include a rating system based on a player's XP. Players can also see how they rank and how others compare to them with their rating leaderboards, so there is even more bragging rights. More than just a sport video game, FIFA is an industry standard and the gold standard of sport video games. Featuring more than 1.8 million registered users, FIFA has the largest worldwide user base of any sports title on PlayStation®3 system, PS Vita, PSP® system, PSP® system, Xbox 360® and Xbox One™. In addition, FIFA Ultimate Team is the most widely played mode for fans, with over 75 million registered users in more than
